... Sciacchetrà of Possa winery is the first sweet wine in the world to be aged in an 'underwater cellar', thus entering in the List of UnderWaterWines. Wines that undergo an underwater aging in glass after bottling. A practice that refers to Ancient Greece and that today finds its Modern Transposition in patented techniques . The Sciacchetrà remained immersed for six months in the sea of Portofino to a depth of 52 meters.

The aging in the sea (the trial involved 48 bottles of Passito produced in 2020) pushed the aging of the wine, giving it a great flavor but at the same time keeping the Delicious Aromas of a young wine.
